Political economy is being taught at the University of Athens since its very inception in 1837, the first chair in the independent states of SE Europe, as part of the Law School curriculum

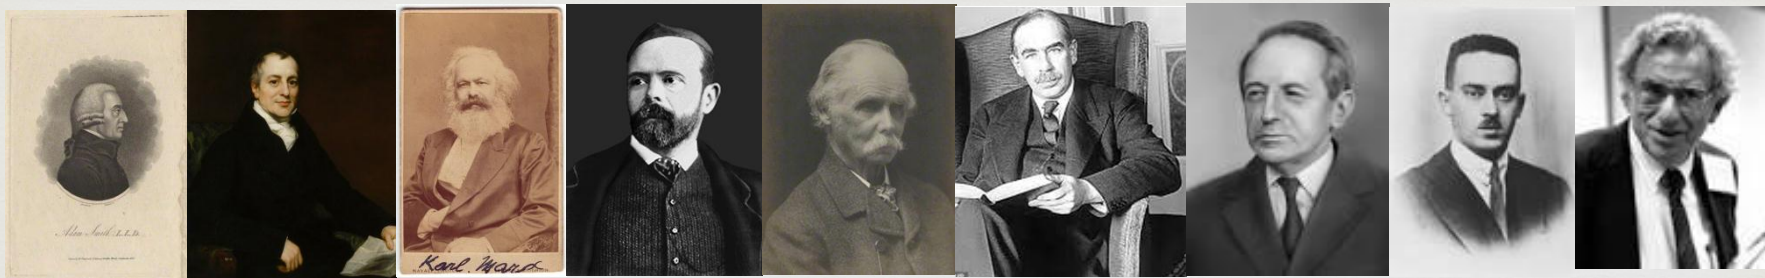

Famous economists like Soutsos, Andreades, Varvaresos, Angelopoulos, Zolotas and Pesmazoglou taught “political economy” or “public economics” at the University of Athens and played an active role in public affairs

After the creation of the Department of Economics as part of the Law School there were four chairs in Political Economy covering a wide variety of subjects. After the 1982 Law on Tertiary Education has been passed the chairs were abolished and the Department was divided into three Divisions (τομείς) with the Division of Political Economy being primus inter pares (Division I).

The Division provides the core curriculum in economic theory for the Department and has as its objective to teach students to see the world from the viewpoint of an economist and to provide them with the mental furniture necessary to excel in academia or business.

The term “Political Economy” still stands for historical reasons and even though it has acquired new connotations, the resilience of the term is not coincidental. The Division and the Department believe that although students should obtain a mastery of modern mainstream neoclassical theory, alternative theoretical avenues should also be explored and we insist that students view economics as a social science. Hence we start with two introductory courses, one in Economic Analysis and one on Political Economy, whereas later on students will have the chance, if they choose so, to study History of Economic Thought (four courses are offered from Division I only, whereas Division V offers a course on the Foundation of Social Sciences). Courses on Marxist Political Economy and (Post)-Keynesian Economics are also offered by the Division. In the doctoral programme HET is mandatory whereas Marxist Political Economy and Post-Keynesian Economics are elective.

Classical Political Economy

Adam Smith \(1723–1790\)

Adam Smith published An Inquiry into the Nature and Causes of the Wealth of Nations in 1776 [London: W. Strahan & T. Cadell]. Subsequent editions revised by Smith were published in 1778, 1784, 1786, and 1789. Edwin Cannan edited in 1904 [London: Methuen] with an introduction and comments what was the standard edition in two volumes. This edition was again published in one volume by the University of Chicago in 1976 for the bicentennial of the Wealth of Nations [Chicago, Ill.: University of Chicago Press]. The Cannan edition is electronically available from the Library of Economics and Liberty. Today the standard edition is the Glasgow edition, edited by R.H. Campbell, A.S. Skinner and W.B. Todd [Oxford: Clarendon, 1976] in the general series The Glasgow Edition of the Works and Correspondence of Adam Smith. It was reprinted by Liberty Press in 1981 [Indianapolis, Indiana]. This edition – together with the other volumes in the General series – is electronically available in PDF and html form from The Online Library of Liberty. Click here for all available editions of Smith's works.

From the Wealth of Nations read in particular:

- His description of the division of labour: Book I, Chapters I, II, & III
- The Chapter on value (Book I, Chapter V).
- His contradistinction of the mercantilist and Physiocratic systems (Book IV, Chapter IX)
- The famous passage on the invisible hand in Book IV, Chapter II.

Regarding the invisible hand see also the passage in

- The Theory of Moral Sentiments in Part IV, Chapter I.
- The History of Astronomy in Section III
